

Bedtime Story For the Little Ones

"Uncle Wiggly and the Bee Tree"
By HOWARD, B. GARIS.

"Will, you're off again, I see!" spoke Nurse Jane Fussy Wuzzy, the muskrat lady housekeeper one morning, as she saw Uncle Wiggly Longears, the rabbit gentleman, starting away from his hollow stump bungalow. He was limping on his red, white and blue striped rheumatism crutch, that Miss Fussy Wuzzy gnawed for him out of a cornstalk. "Off again?" she cried.

"Yes, off again," said Uncle Wiggly. "I must have my adventure, you know."

"I hope it will be a pleasant one today," went on Nurse Jane.

"No, no," said Uncle Wiggly, and away he went hopping over the fields and through the woods. He had not gone very far before he heard a queer humming sound and a sort of plucking in the water and a tiny voice cried:

"Help! Help! Save me! I am drowning!"

"My goodness me, what a queer sound!" cried the muskrat lady. "I don't see any water around here, though. I do hear some plucking. Who are you?" he cried. "And where are you, so that I may save you?"

"Here I am, right down by your foot," was the answer. "I am a honey bee, and I have fallen into this jack-in-the-pulpit flower, which is full of water. Please get me out!"

"To be sure I will!" cried Mr. Longears, and then, stooping down he carefully lifted the poor bee out of the water in the jack-in-the-pulpit.

"This is a plant that looks like a little pitcher, and it holds water. It is called Jack, because it looks like a minister preaching in the pulpit. The Jack happened to be out when the bee fell in the water that has gathered in the plant-pitcher, or Jack would have saved the honey chap. But Uncle Wiggly did it just as well."

"Oh, thank you so much for not letting me drown," said the bee, as she dried her wings in the sun on a big green leaf. "I was on my way to the hive tree with a load of honey when I stopped for a drink. But I leaned over too far and fell in. I can't thank you enough."

"Oh, once in a while," cried Uncle Wiggly in his most jolly voice. "But don't misunderstand me, you say you lived in a hive tree?"

"Yes, a lot of us bees have our hive in a hollow tree in the woods, not far away. It is there we store the honey we gather from summer flowers, so we will have something to eat in the winter when there are no blossoms. Would you like to see the beehive?"

"Indeed, I would," Uncle Wiggly said.

"Follow me, then," buzzed the bee.

SCHOOL DAYS

NEWS NOTES FROM MOVIELAND

VIOLA SMITH, winner of a dozen popularity contests conducted by leading magazines and newspapers, was born in Buffalo, N. Y., in 1898. From earliest childhood this captivating little actress felt sure that she could win success on the stage. After being graduated from high school, she took a three years' course in dramatic art. The family had moved to New York, and right across the street the Biograph company began to build its new studios. When production of pictures began, little Miss Smith used to hang over the garden gate and watch enviously the actresses entering the great building for their day's work. Her chance came one morning when D. W. Griffith looked out of the window and saw her. She was just the type the director wanted for a picture. With characteristic impulse he rushed downstairs and across the street, looked the astonished girl in the eye, and said: "You'll do!"

From that day on, she has been a member of the Biograph company, advancing swiftly from ingenue roles to such important parts as "Lorna Doone." The secret of her popularity lies not alone in her beauty and striking personality, but also in her genuine ability to portray emotion.

CLIMBS TO STARDOM IN LESS THAN YEAR

Doris Kenyon, the picture machine, has been before the public less than a year, yet is to be starred in a forthcoming World picture. Miss Kenyon was recommended at her music teacher's studio one morning when Victor Herbert arrived. He was struck by the beauty of her tones and immediately engaged her for an important starring part in his opera, "Princess Pat," in which production she made a most favorable impression. Maurice Thompson, the noted director, was so impressed by her appearance on the stage that he sent his card to her and, after a five-minute talk, engaged her for his stock company. Miss Kenyon is just now appearing with Clara Kimball Young in "The Feast of Life," and is working on a play in which she is to be starred. She is but eighteen years of age, has been studying voice culture for three years,

When Not To Rouge

There is a story of a Washington society leader, a woman some sixty years old, who paints her face as a man might a canvas. "I am frankly made up," she tells her friends.

Between. And then only in the evening, when the artificial light will conceal the artificiality of the color. Blondes should use a light rouge and brunettes a dark one, and in either case, they should get the small cakes that come in boxes with a wool puff in each box. This because the liquid rouge is apt to streak.

Before using any sort of rouge, all the skin with cold cream, wiping the surface of the face dry, so the rouge will spread well. To get the best effects, rub your fingers over the wool puff, which is filled with rouge dust, then spread the color on with the fingers. You can get just the tint you want this way.

Tint the cheeks, covering the cheek-bone well, to prevent the hollow look about the face, then tint the chin. This will make three artificial color spots in the face if you are very white, so, with just a tinge of color, run over the eyelids, under the nose, and in front of the ear. I have even found it advisable to put a delicate tint on the nose—simply because, if your face has enough natural color to flush the cheeks, the chin and eyelids and nose will share in the general pinkness. A white nose bisecting a pink face shows at once the influence of the paint box.

When not to rouge? Nine times out of ten, don't; the tenth time, use it very, very lightly.

"But, dear me, though I may look bad, you should see me without the rouge and the eye pencils." And there is wisdom, though of a dangerous variety, in what she says.

I believe that a touch of rouge is necessary at times, though these times should be few and very far between.

Calomel salutes! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. It makes you sick and causes cramping and nausea. If you feel bilious, headache, constipated and all kinds of things, just go to your druggist and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tonic you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it—Advertisement.

Says Woman's Beauty Depends Upon Health

Health and Vigor Necessitate Regulation of Organs of Elimination.

Skin foods and face creams and powders cannot make a woman beautiful because beauty lies deeper than that—it depends on health. In most cases the basis of health and the cause of sickness can be traced to the action of the bowels.

The headache, the lassitude, the sallow skin, and the listless eyes are usually caused by constipation. An ideal remedy for women, and one that is especially suited to the delicate organism, is found in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild laxative compound, pleasant to the taste and free from opiates and narcotic drugs of every description. Mrs. Gertrude Jordan, 522 North Liberty St., Indianapolis, Ind., says: "It is simply fine. I have never been able to find anything to compare with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I started using it for the baby and now it is my family standby in all cases where a laxative is needed."

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold in drug stores for fifty cents a bottle. A trial bottle can be obtained, free of charge, by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 154 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

The Daily Novelette

The Big City.

Though skies be dark, Reflecting gloom, Through mail and park The spring buds bloom.

"I WAS thinking Tommie's first visit was the big city, and he was mighty interested in all the sights."

"Gosh, all homelock, there's a policeman. Look at the size of him!" he thought. And he went up to the officer, who stood his foot three in the shade, and inquired: "Do you ever have few arrest criminals and people, officer?"

Just then the cop reached around and collared a man who was dipping into Rubeen Tossie's pocket.

"I'll arrest this one," he said, and marched him off.

"By gum, ef that ain't obligin'! I don't know," thought Rubeen. "Arrestin' a man jest to show a stranger how it's done!—Wall, I'll be born Swaglocked!"

And he proceeded on his way till he came to fire house No. 2468.

"What dew you dew when they's a fire he asked fireman No. 6425, who was hurrying to an truck a drink out of his helmet.

At that moment an alarm sounded from the business section, and so brave in blue did down the pole-mounted engines and clanked out.

"Don't that beat all!" chuckled R. Tossie. "They ain't many fire engines 'n' would take all that trouble to give an exhibition jes' for one man!"

And when he got back him every-body belted him.

Iron Is Greatest of All Strength Builders, Says Doctor

A Story of the Great Endurance and Power of Athletes

Ordinary Nourished Iron Will Make Delicate, Nervous, Run-down People 200 Per Cent. Stronger in Two Weeks' Time in Many Cases.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Most people foolishly seem to think they are going to get renewed health and strength from some stimulating medicine, secret nostrum or narcotic drug, said Dr. Sauer, a well known Specialist who has studied widely both in this country and Europe, when, as a matter of fact, real strength can only come from the food you eat. But people often fail to get the strength out of their food because they have the impure iron in their blood to enable it to change food into living matter. From their blood, the nervous condition they are in, something is wrong but they can't tell what, so they generally commence doctoring for stomach, liver, or kidney trouble, when, as a matter of fact, real strength can only come from the food you eat. NOTE—Nourished Iron recommended above by Dr. Sauer is not a patent medicine nor does it contain any of the secret ingredients commonly prescribed by quack doctors and when iron constituents are widely prescribed to patients, physicians everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not irritate the stomach, and is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion, as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The Manufacturers have such great confidence in Nourished Iron that they offer to refund to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their iron 200 per cent. in four weeks time provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by Dr. Geo. C. A. E. Ryan, and all other druggists—Adv.
